ON THE COVER

THE NORFOLK & WESTERN operated steam locomotives longer than any other major American railroad. The J Class 4-8-4 engines built in its own shops were among the last to go. FINESCALE RAILROADER's Chief Optical Officer, Steve Crise, pays tribute to the great photographer of the N&W, O. Winston Link, with his cover shot of Number 605 steaming up the sky on a cold winter night. A photo feature on Overland Models' 1:48 scale locos begins on page 41.
